

Do The Right Dose

A reminder to use prescription pain relievers as directed

Radio Public Service Announcement Scripts

:20) Prescription pain relievers are safe and effective when used correctly. But if you misuse them, you could become addicted or experience other problems. Take your prescription as directed, and if you need information about addictions, call 1-800-662-HELP. Do the right dose.

A message from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and this station.

(:30) Sometimes your pain seems overwhelming. If the prescribed dose of your prescription pain medication doesn't bring relief, check with your doctor. Pain relievers are safe and effective when used correctly. If misused, you could become addicted or experience other problems. Take your prescription as directed, and if you need more information about addictions call 1-800-662-HELP. Do the right dose.

A message from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and this station.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration
Food and Drug Administration
www.samhsa.gov
www.fda.gov